BUDDHIST BANK CLERK.
TRIBUNAL AND DISCIPLE OF
YELLOW ROBED ASCETIC.
A London bank clerk, who said he was a believer in the "high teachings of the yellow-robed ascetic of India," was an applicant at the House of Commons Appeals Tribunal recently. He had studied the faith for many years, he said, and in 1907 was initiated by one of the greatest Mahatmas of India while the latter was en route to this country.
Mr. Maclean, M.P., the chairman, replying to applicant's solicitor, said it was not the philosophy of Buddhism they were interested in at the moment, but applicant's view of that philosophy.
Applicant said he did not take animal, or bird life, and gave this as the reason why he did not shoot or fish.
Mr. Maclean sought to find it on his initiation, the applicant had any conversation with the Mystic on the wickedness of the soldier's trade. The answer was in the negative.
The Chairman: Do you hold yourself wiser than all the millions of Buddhists who have fought for thousands of years and are to be found today in large numbers in the Indian Army?
My Mahatma, was the answer, looks down on all such people as not being true Buddhists. Thousands of Christians also fight, but I believe it to be against the law of Christ.
Applicants was classed in the non-combatant corps.

BRITISH PRISONERS AT WORK.

CONDITIONS IN GERMANY.
UNITED STATES REPORT.

The Foreign Office has received the report of Surgeon Karl Ohnesorge, of the United States Navy, of visits paid to prisoners working camps in or near the city of Berlin during the early days of this month. With a couple of exceptions—the conditions found cannot be called satisfactory, says the Times, especially with regard to housing. In all the camps visited the working hours were the same for German employees. No work as a rule was required on Sundays and on the whole the British were well clothed and had good shoes. Below are extracts from the report, with places and dates of visit.

CITY OF BERLIN CAMP, APRIL 4.
Three hundred prisoners of war are employed here, 46 British. They are housed in wooden barracks, sufficiently large, with good sanitary arrangements, including shower baths, with hot and cold water. The prisoners are fed by the company, and I was informed that the quality of the food was lately improved, and there was no ground for complaint. The prisoners were able to buy fruit, soft drinks, cakes, bread, canned goods, herrings, bacon, and jam at current prices.

The 46 British prisoners are divided into two working squads. Twenty-five work in the retort room and the remaining 21 are employed at manual labour about the yards. Those detailed in the retort room receive one mark 50 pfennigs (about 6d.) a day, while those engaged in manual labour receive 75 pfennigs daily. The yard for work are the same as those of the German employees, with whom the prisoners work on friendly terms.

NIEDERHONNEFELD, APRIL 4.
Eighty-two British are employed in a smelter and casting foundry. They are quartered outside of the works. The arrangements are very satisfactory. Twenty-five are housed in a dilapidated building in the rear of a beer garden. The building is old and insanitary and the quarters crowded. The sanitary arrangements are crude and very unsatisfactory. The remaining 47 occupy the first floor of a three-story building situated in close proximity to the other quarters. The two upper storeys of this building are occupied by German families. The small yard in the rear of the building is bounded by the river, which is the only source of water for washing purposes. Drinking water is obtained from taps in the building. Shower baths are provided by the company in a building in the plant. In this second building the men occupy three rooms, the bunks arranged in double tiers. It is overcrowded. The adjoining beer garden and boat house is much frequented on Sundays by Germans and the prisoners are therefore confined to the limits of their own buildings and small yards. The military authorities at Döberitz gave permission for recreation, such as football, which was to be played in the field on the outskirts of the town, but the local police authorities objected and the play had to be given up. The men complained of the poor quality of the food, and I think this complaint is justified to some degree.

The prisoners receive 2 marks 50 pfennigs (about 2s. 6d.) daily. There is a decided room for improvement on existing conditions.

GLADOW, APRIL 5.
Twelve men, including one sergeant and one petty officer No. 1, are employed by farmers in this village. They are housed together in three rooms of a farmer's house. The place was clean and conditions very satisfactory.

CITY OF BERLIN ELECTRIC LIGHT PLANT (GARDEN), APRIL 5.
Twenty-seven British, 10 of whom are corporals, are employed here, chiefly in unloading coal and wheeling it into the power house. They are housed in a specially-constructed barracks in one corner of the yard. Food is supplied by the company and of good quality and sufficient in quantity. There is very limited space for recreation, but walls

EUROPE IN LONDON.

NEW COLONIES CREATED BY THE WAR.

In the twenty months of war a new London has sprung into being: a London much more cosmopolitan in character and with many more distinctly marked foreign colonies than was ever thought to be possible.

Neighbourhoods that have not hitherto appealed to any number of foreigners have now picturesque Continental zones in which the daily habits of life of Continental society are faithfully reproduced.

Nothing is more remarkable than the way in which London has managed satisfactorily to digest all these cosmopolitan elements, and to find work for all but a small proportion. All one time when thousands of Belgian refugees were arriving in London it was a question solely of finding shelter for them. Now the problem is a different one: it is more a question of utilizing their services to the best advantage.

Able-bodied Belgians have been drafted into munition factories in the London area, as in other parts of England, and where they have been found employment of this character in large numbers they have quickly created colonies. The younger men have been drafted into the Belgian Army, others who have proved to be trained mechanics have found employment in Government-controlled works, while hundreds of older men are earning a livelihood by assisting in various forms of civil industrial employment.

Soho has changed out of recognition.
Many of its former inhabitants have gone to the war and there are fewer young Frenchmen and Italians in its picturesque streets—and no Germans or Austrians.
In their place have come an overwhelming number of neutral subjects.

THE SWISS WATERS.
The Swiss are largely represented in the invasion. Switzerland, like Germany, is the home of the waiter, and as most of the German waiters who used to earn very good money are in intermittent camps there has been every inducement to Swiss waiters, who in their own country have had the worst season on record, to come over and take their place.

The Rumanian colony has grown. The friendly feelings which exist between this Latin race and the people of this country have induced many more Rumanians to seek work in London. They are of a class mostly ineligible for military service and have to a considerable extent made good the shortage in restaurant and entertainment labour. They agree very well with their Italian neighbours in Soho, for the Italo-Rumanian enterprise seems to be complete.

In the Tottenham Court-road neighbourhood many Dutch people have established themselves temporarily, but they are a drifting population; not because of any wandering instincts but by reason of the changing conditions of employment.
Danes and Norwegians, who have settled in London since the outbreak of the war are chiefly to be found in districts bordering on the docks.

In Earl's Court the eye is no longer surprised to catch sight of inscriptions in Flemish. But the horse-meat queue at the week-end is sufficiently novel to arrest attention.

HORSE-MEAT SHOPS.
The Belgian wife makes her meat purchases from day to day, but it is on Saturday that she gives the butcher the biggest order. Outside one small horse-meat shop a crowd of Belgian women is always to be seen on a Saturday afternoon patiently waiting to be served. There is usually a notice in the window stating that the particular carcase on sale that day has been passed as sound and fit for human consumption.

Just opposite West Brompton Underground Station the largest of the horse-meat shops is to be found. The proprietor has two sons at the war and a third son working as a gunsmith. His has a high opinion of the value of the horse-meat and says that a preference for it is rapidly extending to British people and that on some days he has more English customers than Belgian.

SCOTTISH FOOTBALL.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

EDINBURGH, April 26.
Not the least remarkable feature of the present Association football season is the inability of Celtic to score even once against Heart of Mid-Lothian while amassing a record total at the expense of all the other clubs. And this although the Hearts, through their contributions to the Army, have never been so badly equipped. At the last meeting between the two clubs, Hearts put a scratch eleven in the field; indeed two days before play they could only muster eight men to face the Champions.
But it was characteristic of the Hearts that this odd lot should give the Celtic their stiffest fight of the whole season, and come off with a goalless draw. Another game in which the pace was almost Cup Tie pitch was between Dundee and Morton. The Greenock club has established an ascendancy over Dundee scarcely less remarkable than that enjoyed by Hearts over Celtic, and once more they scored an exciting victory. Clyde caught Rangers napping; that is all that need be said of the game.

Rangers 2; Dumbarton 2.
Hibernians 3; Ayr United 1.
Celtic 0; Heart of Mid-Lothian 0.
Rangers 3; Clyde 2.
Dundee 0; Greenock Morton 1.
Raith Rovers 3; Aberdeen 1.
Airdrieonians 0; Partick Thistle 2.
Third Lanark 1; Kilmarnock 2.
St. Mirren 0; Hamilton Academicals 0.
Motherwell 5; Queens Park 1.
Rangers 2; Queen's Park 0.
Celtic 4; Third Lanark 1.
Clyde 3; Partick Thistle 2.

Some pretty football was seen in the game between teams selected from the Scottish juniors and Birmingham and District. The English forwards began by threatening to run the Scots off their feet, then the tide turned, and the Scots took a lead that was never seriously threatened. Score, Scotland, 3; England, 1.

In a Schools' International, Scotland won by 4 goals to England's 1.

LIFE WITHOUT HEALTH IS LIVING DEATH.
VETARZO BRAIN AND NERVE FOOD

The latest discovery of modern science is without equal in all cases of defective action of brain power, whether induced by worry, overwork, dissipation, or other influences. Sleeplessness, palpitation, defective circulation, nervous dyspepsia, etc., or a general low vitality, mental and bodily prostration, want of confidence, sexual debility, premature decay or deficiency of the vital forces, loss of vitality, harrying dreams, restlessness that can settle to nothing, irritability of temper, female complaints, hysteria, backache, bearing down pains, etc., are all so many different phases of brain and nerve weakness and exhaustion, the cause of by far the greater portion of the misery, ill-health and dejection by which we are afflicted on every hand, that can only be successfully combated by the use of the wonderful and highly scientific preparation. Bracing up the system generally, it gives tone to the exhausted nerves, arrests all weakening, wasting diseases, restores the brain control, and imparts new life and vigour to those who had so recently seemed played out, used up and exhausted.
VETARZO Brain Food, for medicinal purposes, is sold in all chemists and druggists, and is available for Free Booklet, or P.O. 2/6 for Trial Bottle of either remedy, to THE VETARZO REMEDIES CO., 60, BELL LANE, LONDON. Unimpeachable evidence may be seen by the following list of extra profits—do not accept it, but insist on having VETARZO. The genuine has words "VETARZO REMEDIES" on Government stamp. SOLD BY BOOTS' CASH CHEMISTS.

The meat is sold on an average at 3d.
per pound, and for the epicure horse sausage, which, when cut open looks not unlike pork sausage, is on sale at 4d.
per pound.

The horses which provide this meat are purchased in districts near to London, the best quality being four and five-year-old animals destroyed because of injured fetlocks.

The horse-meat shops are very cleanly kept, and the meat is as temptingly displayed as possible. Possibly it is only usage which makes the passer-by feel that he would have to be very hungry before he joined the vitriolic circle of Belgian women buying these cheap steaks for grilling, and the still cheaper portions of the carcase for stewing.

It is, of course, only the poorer class of Belgian people who are to be found in these colonies patronising the horse-meat butcher. The wealthier Belgian has taken up quarters in Bloomsbury, and eats ordinary beef and mutton.

Bloomsbury, today, is well worth extended study. It is growing more rapidly than any other central quarter of London. It has become a huge clearinghouse for all the nationalities fighting the Central Powers. In the same boarding-house there will be Polish, Japanese, Belgian, refugees, invalided French soldiers, Serbian, refugees, and Russian Red Cross nurses. A babel of tongues greet the occasional English visitor who,
in the presence of these picturesque nationalities, feels himself Rastafarian-like, wandering into a new world.

Bloomsbury is a mass of coloured colours with no one colour outstanding, that is because it has no clearly defined foreign colony, but is rather a congeries of many colonies.

The reason is that the people who come to Bloomsbury are "mostly" birds of passage. They stay there because it is a convenient place from which to look around for a permanent habitation.
There are no industrial activities to hold to this neighbourhood those who are seeking work, although it is curious to note the large number of quick-witted Belgian young women who have been engaged by boarding-house keepers as assistant managers because of their knowledge of language and their general usefulness.

ALWAYS NEW SIGHTS.
The ordinary English boarding-housekeeper is at a loss to know what to do with all these mixed nationalities housed up in him but with the aid of one of these clever Belgian young women apparently insuperable obstacles are overcome, and something like order is made out of seeming chaos.

But because the stream of Continental visitors passing through Bloomsbury is always maintained, the neighbourhood feels acutely the need for expansion.
More hotels have sprung up of late, and the process of converting private residences into large private hotels steadily goes on. At this rate there will soon be few private residences left in Bloomsbury.

The neighbourhood is interesting because in its streets there are always new faces to be seen and new sights. One day a wounded Zouave, with scarlet fez contrasting sharply with the conventional headgear of the population, saunters along, another day a party of Russian Red Cross nurses in neat grey uniform is to be met, while a third day the eye is diverted by the sight of a band of smiling almond-eyed disciples of Florence Nightingale from the land of the chrysanthemum.

Of the different colonies the only one, possibly, that may be described by the rather hackneyed phrase, "atypical," is the Portuguese colony of Tottenham.
King Manuel has gathered round him many of his old courtiers, and some of the most fashionable figures in Lisbon society have followed him into exile, well knowing that the historic friendship of the British for the Portuguese people must ever ensure them a cordial reception.

IN THE EAST END.

French people have spread themselves in considerable numbers in that part of West London extending from the Marble Arch to Shepherd's Bush. They include many who, before the war were in very affluent circumstances, and even today have considerable means at their disposal.
The woman at least are easily to be identified by reason of a distinctly Parisian note in their dress.

The East End is so pronouncedly foreign that it would be the easiest thing in the world for changes in the character of its population to take place without their being readily noticed. But with a little patience and with a keen eye for ones surroundings the new East which the war has created is quickly revealed.
It is an East End almost devoid of Germans. The names of the German baker and the German pork butcher who flourished so exceedingly in the old days when the world dwelt in peace has gone.
There are fewer Austrians; those who are at liberty are Czech and Galician, who have studied the authorities that being at large they represent no danger to the community.

There are more Poles than formerly.
Ever since the war started they have drifted over from the Continent in groups of twenty or thirty. There are more Chinese brought over by the knowledge that they could always find work at sea or work connected with the sea.

But the chief addition to the population has been made by the Belgians, drawn thither by industrial opportunities and not displeased to find a free and new cosmopolitan sort of society in which they are more at home than in any other part of London.

Yet a third Belgian colony is to be found in Richmond, where the refugees absorbed in the labour market are many cases able to maintain a superior standard of comfort.
A small Serbian colony is to be found at South Kensington.
There is all this and more new London to be seen. It may be true that it is easy to say. After the war these numbers of colonies may fade away.
But the majority of the Belgians and the French people will go home, and whatever happens the old London will be even. Raymond Turner correspondents.

TO-DAY'S TELEGRAMS.

(Reuter's Service to the China Mail.)

TURKISH OFFENSIVE IN ARMENIA.

TRYING TO BREAK THE RUSSIAN CENTRE.

PETROGRAD, June 2. The Kargu Bazar mentioned in the telegram of May 31st as the place where the Turks are endeavouring to break the Russian centre is situated fifty miles south-west of Erzerum, and the same distance north-west of Mush.

It is calculated that the enemy, including Germans and Austrians, number 40,000. They include troops from Constantinople, Macedonia, Syria and Gallipoli.

The Russians hold a strong position past the Bingolagh chain, which they crossed after the capture of Erzerum.

The Germans are sending constant reinforcements to Asia Minor. A Turkish communiqué says the Turks attacked the Russians at Mamahatun on a front of twelve miles.

BULGARIAN INVASION OF GREECE.

STORIES OF RAPE, MURDER AND PILLAGE.

LONDON, June 2. A Salonika telegram states that 25,000 Bulgars entered Greek territory, some of them being clad in German uniforms.

Vast crowds witnessed it. President Poincaré headed the cortege, a feature of which were the numerous taxi-cabs in which General Gallieni brought up troops to the battle of Oureg, thus saving Paris.

EARLIER TELEGRAMS.

YERDUN—DAY BY DAY.

A SMALL GERMAN SUCCESS AFTER SEVERAL FAILURES.

PARIS, June 2. The evening communiqué says:—On the left of the Meuse there was an intermittent bombardment of the sectors of Avocourt and Mort Homme.

The Germans on the right of the Meuse, after a furious bombardment, attacked from Thiaumont Farm to Vaux. After several fruitless assaults they succeeded in penetrating the first line trenches between Douaumont Fort and Vaux Pond.

Everywhere else the attacks were shattered by our machine-gun fire, with heavy losses to the enemy.

A group of German aeroplanes bombed the open town of Bar-le-Duc in the afternoon, killing 18 civilians, including two women and four children, and wounding 25, including six women and 11 children.

KAISER AND VON HINDENBURG.

OBLIGED TO PULL THEMSELVES TOGETHER AGAIN.

AMSTERDAM, June 2. The Kaiser has visited the Eastern Headquarters.

Replying to Field-Marshal Von Hindenburg's welcome, he said:—We are obliged to pull ourselves together again for special deeds and efforts against the superior enemy. My armies will persevere victoriously and win an honourable peace. I, your War Lord, and King, thank you for your unforgettable deeds, which have made you our national hero.

SAFE, SURE, ALWAYS CURES.

DO not suffer from cramp, colic or pain in the stomach when Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy goes to the right spot and gives immediate relief. You cannot afford to be without it if you are subject to attacks of this kind. For sale by all Chemists and Storekeepers.

THE ITALIAN FRONT.

FIGHTING UNABATED.

ROME, June 2. A communiqué says:—Both armies continued active in Lagarina. A further surprise attack at Biadè was repulsed at the point of the bayonet.

There has been considerable activity at Monte Fambio, north-west of Asiago. An enemy attack at Fomiatel was beaten back by the Alpini. The action between Posina and Asiago is continuing. The enemy crossed the Posina Torrent but were driven back in disorder across the Posina.

The Austrians are heavily pressing the wing-positions at Monte Cengio, in Sette Comuni.

The situation is unchanged in the Val Sugana.

RUSSIANS EVACUATE MAMAHATUN.

STRONG TURKISH OFFENSIVE.

PETROGRAD, June 2. Two successful Russian aviation raids on the enemy's communications on the Western Front is described in a communiqué, which also states: In the Caucasus we repulsed a heavy attack in the Baliburt region. Strong Turkish forces attempted to outflank our salient near Mamahatun. We evacuated Mamahatun after destroying the bridge.

In the direction of Diarbekir we repulsed an offensive by Turkish infantry and Kurdish cavalry.

THE BRITISH FRONT.

ARTILLERY BATTLE AT VINNY.

LONDON, June 2. General Sir Douglas Haig, in a communiqué, says:—Our aeroplanes, when reconnoitring yesterday, had a long running fight with three hostile machines. One of the latter was driven down, and one of ours is missing.

Hostile aircraft in the night dropped eight bombs on Poperinghe without damage.

There was continuous heavy and reciprocal shelling all day with guns of all calibres in the neighbourhood of Vinny Ridge. The fire was sometimes intense. This is the most noticeable feature of to-day's operations.

THE EGYPTIAN FRONTIER.

CLEANING UP DAFRUF.

LONDON, June 1. It is officially announced that the enemy losses in Dauruf (Soudan) were heavier than previously estimated. War material is pouring in. Already half the population of 55,000 have returned to the town.

ENEMY POST ATTACKED.

LONDON, June 1. An Anzac mounted detachment, on the 31st May attacked an enemy post 20 miles north-east of Katia, and drove the enemy eastward with considerable loss. British aeroplanes bombed the fleeing Turks.

GERMAN CHANCELLOR AND PEACE.

AMSTERDAM, June 2. A telegram from Munich shows that Dr. Bethmann-Hollweg is engaged in discussing peace more than food control.

In an interview given to the representative of a Munich paper he declared that the present war map of Europe must form the basis of peace discussions. He suggested that direct separate negotiations with individual belligerent Powers would best promote peace.

LIEBKNECHT CHARGED WITH WAR TREASON.

AMSTERDAM, June 1. The Vossische Zeitung says that Dr. Liebknecht is charged with war treason, and is liable on conviction to 10 years' penal servitude.

ZEPPELIN CRIPPLED.

COPENHAGEN, June 1. Zeppelin L64 passed Farø, proceeding in a south-westerly direction, apparently badly damaged.

OBSOLETE GUNS.

REMARKABLE ALLEGATIONS.

LONDON, June 1. In the House of Commons Mr. Ronald McNeill asked regarding the use in Gallipoli and Mesopotamia of Indian mountain-guns alleged to be obsolete and worn out, which the Raj said they have declined to replace on the ground of expense.

Mr. Austen Chamberlain said he had no knowledge of the particulars of the case, but he was sure Mr. McNeill was misinformed regarding the reply of the Raj. The general question of the armament of the Indian mountain batteries was receiving careful attention.

THE SILVER MARKET.

LONDON, June 1. Messrs. Samuel Montagu & Co. report that the retrograde movement in prices in the silver market was accelerated by substantial sales on account of China, while the Indian hoards were rather sellers than buyers, and America has contributed the usual quota. The demand continued constant and substantial, and the avoidance of unnecessary rivalry on the part of buyers naturally made the market more sensitive to all selling, but the wisdom of the step was clearly evident.

WAR ITEMS.

Italy has revealed to the colours the first and second classes of Alpini of 1878 and the third maritime class in the 1880 category.

"No Community of Prayer" with England! is advocated by Dr. Immanuel Hehn, the chief pastor of the Kaiser Wilhelm Memorial Church in Berlin.

Illustrations appearing in the German papers show that the enemy troops are now equipped with steel helmets.

Lieutenant J. M. Hazen, youngest son of Mr. Hazen, Canadian Minister of Marine, has been killed in action.

General Sarraill and General Mahon gave permission for 70 Jewish officers and non-commissioned officers and 400 men of the Allied armies to attend the two days' religious festival of the Passover. A similar privilege was also extended to the Catholics on Easter Day.

Four persons were sentenced to death by the Military Court at Brussels on 29th inst. A convict was sentenced to imprisonment for life, and six others, including Professor Gossens, of Ghent, to terms of imprisonment varying from 10 to 15 years. All are Belgians and all were accused of espionage.

Dr. James Mullin, of Cardiff, suggests that every citizen and every citizen of Britain should contribute to the creation of a vast volunteer aeroplane fleet to combat the Zeppelin danger. "If every city and town in these islands [he says] contributed one or more aeroplanes according to their means, we should probably have a thousand of the latest type added to our present fleet, which would enable us to attack each hostile aircraft with at least 50 of ours, instead of three or four."

In the "Personal" column of The Times a month's notice is given by the Serbian Legation in London that, by order of the Serbian Government all Serbian subjects between 18 and 45 years of age inclusive, also those who have been for various reasons exempted from performing the military service with the Serbian Army are to present themselves within 10 days at the Serbian Legation in London or at the nearest Consulate with a view to communicating to them the order concerning their military duties.

The new "rational ale"—a non-alcoholic beer which was first put on the market last summer—is now being sold, says the Times, at several of the cantons of the Central Board of Control, and is stated to have been favourably received. English hops and malt are used in its preparation, in the same way as in the case of ordinary ale, up to the point when the beer is ready for bottling. It then undergoes a special treatment by which alcohol is stopped from entering into the liquid. One of the merits claimed for it is that it is far more nutritive than the old light-gravity beers and another is its freshness. It can be sold at 2d. per pint instead of 3d. on draught, and 2s. 6d. per dozen instead of 3s. 6d. and 4s. in bottle.

Dr. Addison, Parliamentary Secretary, Ministry of Munitions, states, in reply to Mr. Field, that the number of persons engaged on Government work in the metal and chemical trades, including those employed at the ordnance factories, is approximately 1,000,000, of whom over 200,000 are women and girls. Of this total from 40 per cent. to 45 per cent. are engaged on Admiralty work, while a comparatively small proportion of the remainder are working for the Ordnance Department of the War Office on non-munition work. These persons are employed in approximately 13,000 factories and workshops, in addition to the ordnance factories, but a number of these concerns are only partially employed on Government work. The amount paid in wages for munition work is not known.

TOMMY—A FINE GENTLEMAN.

Addressing the London branch of the Christian Social Union in Bow Church recently, Bishop Protherham, canon-resident of Gloucester, said the soldiers of today were the industrial factors of tomorrow. Klack had levelled the manhood of the country upwards and downwards, and officers and men wounded soldiers and nurses had alike learned the self-same lesson of respect and comradeship.

The effect upon the soldiers themselves could be seen already. Rough, clouting lads from the lanes and street corners had been taught self-discipline and consequently self-respect. Many had been enabled by sacrifice, and had shown what a fine gentleman an English "Tommy" could be. What a force, then, was here for the healing of England's unhappy divisions!

Dilution of labour was surrounded with the gravest dangers not only for men, but for women and for the future of the race, nevertheless the dangers could be avoided and the "woman movement" was fraught with hopefulness for the future.

A PEOPLE POISONED BY MILITARISM.

LORD CREWE ON GERMAN WAR DESIGNS IN COMMERCE.

WHY THE ALLIES ARE GOING INTO TRADE CONFERENCE.

New light on the aims of the Allies in holding the great Economic and Commercial Conference in Paris was thrown on the screen of publicity in the House of Lords recently by the Marquis of Crewe.

This interesting statement, on behalf of the Government, was made in reply to Lord Courtney of Penwith, who called for copies of the invitations to the Conference, the British Government's replies to such invitations, and the instructions given to our delegates.

The Conference, said Lord Courtney, was full of peril to the realisation of the principles that should lead to the regeneration of Europe. Instead of helping in the re-establishment of European peace and a partnership based on the recognition of equal rights, it was, as far as he understood it, an attempt to pursue after the war, in a sphere other than that of the battlefield, a similar unity, a similar antagonism to the German people, German trade and commerce, and German prosperity.

OUR DUTY TO FREE TRADE.

He asked for an explanation of the apparent discrepancy between the peril of the Conference, for which the Government was in some measure to blame, and the policy announced by the Prime Minister in his Dublin speech in 1914. Unfortunately the Conference did not stand alone. It must be associated with language used by responsible people, and particularly with the statement of Mr. Buncama that German commerce and German progress must never be allowed to raise its head again. If that was true the situation was infinitely more grave.

Many changes might be brought about by this war, but he hoped that at all events we should not attempt a reversal of the doctrine of Free Trade, which alone had enabled us to carry through this war by giving us our wealth and all our resources of credit.

Viscount Bryce thought the greatest prudence should be exercised by the Government representatives at the Conference. It was not wise to allow passion to overcome reason. It was much too soon to say what the conditions would be after the war. It was impossible to formulate conditions now, and wrong to frame a policy that would not be practicable or useful in the situation prevailing at the end of the war.

The Marquis of Crewe, in reply, said that at the end of last year there was some conversation between the French Government and ourselves in which the French Government suggested that it would be advantageous if we could arrive at some common ground on economic questions by holding a conference without sacrificing the freedom of the respective countries. There were no papers on the subject.

It was proposed that the conference should take place on some current matters arising during the war, and also on some others that would have to be faced when the war ended. Among the first was the question of a joint agreement on the prohibition of trading with the enemy; and it was also suggested that we should discuss the character of prohibited exports from this country in order to inflict as little inconvenience as possible on the Allied countries, and the question of the future economic independence of the Allies. No formal reply was sent to these informal proposals beyond the expression of our willingness to send representatives to the conference.

In his speech the Prime Minister referred to the competing ambitions of different countries, and expressed the hope that one result of the war might be the creation of a better mind in Europe. Lord Courtney hoped that the beneficial lessons of the war would be equally learnt by Germany. He wished he could be as sanguine as the noble lord.

GERMAN PRIDE AND DREAM.

Lord Courtney had spoken of a party in Germany that was wavering in its support of the war, apparently prepared to make peace on acceptable terms. He was afraid the noble lord exaggerated the extent of this feeling in Germany. So far as the Government could ascertain there were small signs of wavering or of a desire for peace among those entitled to speak with any weight. He feared, therefore, that when the noble lord spoke of the "disappointment on these well-meaning people in Germany by the mere calling together of the Conference he was suffering under an illusion—a dream that had no reality behind it.

It was true, no doubt, that language had been used which had not been quite fairly understood, on the crushing of Prussian militarism and the crushing of Germany; but what was the Germans had done that had caused a great many people in France and in this country to determine that Germany should not in the future have the same power to continue the same line of action? Germany had combined commercial expansion with political intrigue, with an audacity and success unparalleled.

A RECOVERED PEOPLE.

When the noble lord failed to separate German enterprise from German militarism, and the character of the German people from the ambitions of the German General Staff, he was undertaking an impossible task. He did not believe it was possible to separate these military ambitions which had set the world on Germany all over the world. The poison had permeated too deeply the whole character of the German people.

Mr. Buncama, Mr. Bonar Law, and Mr. Hughes were about to attend the Conference. Mr. Hughes, like the other two Ministers, would attend it as an Imperial representative. They would go with no instructions except the general instruction to keep their eyes and their minds open. They would return without pledging the Government to any definite course of action.

It would be a bad thing to frame our future commercial policy on a system of "frantic" revenge, careless whether we inflicted a vast injury on ourselves and on the Empire, but that was by no means to say that occasions might not arise, parallel with the ordering of guns from Essen, in which it might be necessary to sacrifice some commercial advantages in order to avoid greater possible dangers.

It was quite impossible to cultivate too greatly the exchange of ideas between the representatives of the Allied countries. There was an instance at this moment in the visit of our Parliamentary friends from France. They did not come with any rigidly laid-down programme for discussion, but he had no doubt their visit would bear fruit in the countries by its influence on public opinion.

This Economic Conference, of course, was of a more regular and formal character, but it would have a permanent good effect in making the two countries more thoroughly acquainted, and would serve, he hoped, as a prelude to those more important and final discussions, the date of which it was impossible to forecast, but the material for which he was convinced could not be too soon prepared. (Hear, hear.)
